

Active Shooter Response Training: Options for Safety and Survival

Responsible business owners and operators must have awareness and an action plan for an active shooter or workplace violence emergency at their facilities. Effective plans include components on communication with employees, visitors or guests; employee accountability; employee actions and roles; coordination and communication with emergency responders; and a structured business response. This program fosters coordination between facilities owners and operators and local emergency response teams presenting individuals with options for their safety and survival.

Readiness Resource Group (RRG) provides a new and comprehensive web-based training curriculum for government and commercial clients nationwide. Training focuses on what individual employees can do and what senior management must do to protect life safety and corporate assets. Modules are customized for specific business lines. A Basic Training course is recommended for all personnel. More detailed executive management courses address crisis management, workplace violence, insider threat and fire safety.

What is Active Shooter Response Training?

- Web-based training customized for 25 distinct lines of business
- Focuses on individual and institutional options for response to the active shooter incident
- Employee & Executive Management Courses
- Supplemental Courses on Fire Safety, Insider Threat, Workplace Violence and Crisis Management for Executives

Our Qualifications

RRG is a veteran-owned business with an extensive portfolio of contract support to the U.S. Department of Homeland Security, Department of Defense, Department of Energy, state and local governments, regional fusion centers and private sector clients. RRG has a deep roster of law enforcement, security and emergency planning subject matter experts who are available to provide technical assistance and planning support.

RRG's senior instructors are drawn from career experiences including the FBI Hostage Rescue Team (HRT), Federal, State and local SWAT teams, multi-assault coordination tactics and operations planning assignments, and commercial facilities security management executive positions. Our training cadre assisted the U.S. Department of Homeland Security in the curriculum update and training delivery of the active shooter program (2013-2014). Key trainers have balanced professional careers in both law enforcement and as directors of safety and security for some of the world's largest resort and casino properties.
